

From the Editor

It is my pleasure to introduce to you the new-look Burnsville Bulletin. This issue marks the 29th year of the City's quarterly newsletter, which launched in 1990. For more than 100 issues, the Burnsville Bulletin has provided information to residents on City events, initiatives, projects, budgets, community news and more.

We are excited for this format change – the first in 20 years – and hope that the new layout will be more engaging for readers with more graphics, more photos and better streamlined content. In addition to a more colorful and interesting read, the change to a “magazine-style” layout allows the Burnsville Bulletin to better conform to the branding and layout standards the City has put in place for its other publications over the last few years.

The change to the Burnsville Bulletin also coincides with the recent launch of the City's updated website – www.burnsvillemn.gov. If you haven't yet, I encourage you to check out the vastly improved site. More information on the website redesign is available on p. 12.

A special thank you to Communications Specialist Carissa Larsen, the City's graphic designer. She has been the layout artist for the Burnsville Bulletin for the previous five years, and put in a lot of work designing the updated newsletter.

Finally, I'd also like to thank all of the staff members, organizations and community members who have provided content and input for the Bulletin for nearly three decades. I look forward to continuing work with the community on our ever-evolving communication efforts.

Thanks for reading!
